Ex-veep's second try

Candidate Nixon thinks he's found some answers

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard M. Nixon announced formally Thursday that he is a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination and said, "I believe I have found some answers" to the problems confronting the United States.

"I have decided, therefore, to enter the Republican presidential primary in New Hampshire," his statement said.

It was issued in the form of a letter to the citizens of New Hampshire. Nixon prepared to open his drive with three days of appearances in that state, beginning Friday. From there, his office said, he will go to Wisconsin and Oklahoma.

New Hampshire's primary, scheduled for March 12, is the nation's first. Wisconsin follows on April 2.

In his statement, Nixon said the United States is in "grave difficulties around the world and here at home." He said the efforts to find solutions transcend partisan politics.

"Peace and freedom in the world, and peace and progress here at home," the statement continued, "will depend on the decisions of the next president of the United States."

"For these critical years, America needs new leadership."

Nixon reminded the voters of his 14 years of experience in Washington, during which, he said, "I learned the awesome nature of the great decisions a president faces." He went on:

"During the past eight years I have had the chance to reflect on the lessons of public office, to measure the nation's tasks and its problems from a fresh perspective. I have sought to apply those lessons to the needs of the present, and to the entire sweep of this final third of the 20th century."

"And I believe I have found some answers."

Nixon's announcement came as no surprise. For many months he has been speaking and writing about foreign problems—especially the war in Vietnam—and the major domestic issues in the United States.

Moreover, various polls showed him well ahead of Gov. George Romney of Michigan, the only other announced candidate for the GOP nomination, and also leading those considered potential candidates.

As Nixon declared his candidacy, the latest Gallup Poll showed him holding a 3-1 lead over Romney and a margin of 3 to 2 over Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York.

Voters in 320 communities across the nation were asked, "Suppose the choice for president in the Republican Convention narrows down to Richard Nixon, Gov. George Romney and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, which would you prefer to have the Republican convention select?"

The Gallup survey reported 68 per cent favored Nixon to 26 per cent for Romney with 6 per cent undecided. A similar survey last November gave Nixon 65 per cent to Romney's 31 per cent. Against Rockefeller, the poll said Nixon had 55 per cent to the governor's 41 per cent. In the November survey, Nixon was the choice of 65 per cent of those questioned over Rockefeller, the poll said.

In the GOP Convention, the winner of the nomination will need a minimum of 667 delegate votes out of the total of 1,333.

Some political analysts have estimated that Nixon may already have lined up between 350 and 400 delegate votes.

Nixon opens his second drive for the presidency with distinct political assets and a distinct liability.

LBJ predicts bright 1968; wants to halt price spiral

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson called Thursday for lighter voluntary restraints on wages and prices, sought a no-strike pledge in key industries and set up a Cabinet-level committee to oversee the entire price question in 1968.

In his annual Economic Report to Congress, Johnson avoided even one mention of direct wage and price controls. And he placed the emphasis on controlling inflation in higher taxes and a new style wage-price guidepost.

He called anew for enactment of his proposed 10 per cent tax surcharge "in the next few weeks" and forecast a healthy economy throughout 1968 if Congress and the nation accept "the hard choices before us."

Johnson blamed Congress for rising interest rates, a declining trade surplus and the more rapid pace of price increases in the last half of 1967.

"Damage has already been done to interest rates, to our trade surplus, and to the level of prices by the failure of Congress to act last fall (on higher taxes)," he said.

"But it is still not too late to avoid far more serious problems if action is taken in the next few weeks," he added.

It was the second strong appeal by Johnson this week for Congress to pass the surcharge which the President in his budget message last Monday labeled a war tax for the first time.

In his economic message, Johnson reviewed the balance of payments program he outlined

New Year's Day, again urged Americans to defer travel outside the Western Hemisphere for two years, opposed import quotas and renewed his pledge to maintain the price of gold at $35 an ounce.

The President's economic report forecast a $61 billion increase—the biggest ever—in gross national product this year to $446 billion if taxes are raised.

This would represent a 7 1/2 per cent advance with price increases of more than 3 per cent and real output of more than 4 per cent—up from the 2 1/2 per cent of 1967.

Administration officials contend price increases in the last half of 1967 ran at an annual rate of 4 per cent and that this gives the economy a running start into 1968, requiring the tax increase to stem inflation.

Johnson said most experienced observers of the economy now agree that the pace is too fast for safety and will remain so in the months ahead.

The GNP is the total dollar value of the nation's entire output of goods and services.

Although avoiding for the second straight year any numerical value for the wage-price guideposts which fell into disuse last year, Johnson said the average gain in wages and fringe benefits should move back toward productivity gains.

The Council of Economic Advisors, in a companion report, said labor settlements last year averaged 5 1/2 per cent with some exceeding 6 per cent. The council called for settlements "appreciably lower" this year but set no figure.

Unrealistic
It said a numerical target would be inappropriate since it would be unrealistic to expect labor to accept wage increases which recoup only last year's 3 per cent rise in the cost of living.

The Council's 3.2 per cent guidepost of 1966 was exceeded regularly.

The Cabinet Committee on Price Stability—as the new group will be called—will meet with business and labor leaders in an attempt to reach a consensus on standards for general price and wage decisions.

Price stability cannot be achieved in 1968, the council said, but a slowing down can be attained as a first step.

The President also urged business to absorb cost increases wherever possible and avoid any price rise not in line with labor and material costs.

In theory, the wage-price guideposts call for wage increases in line with productivity gains and relatively stable prices.

No strike pledge
The new Cabinet-level committee undoubtedly will discuss a no strike pledge in key industries as part of the administration's program to reduce the international dollar drain this year by $3 billion. A strike or even the threat of a strike can increase imports and thus reduce the trade surplus.

Johnson made only one brief mention of the no-strike pledge in his message while reviewing the new balance of payments program.

"We must also exert every effort," he said, "to avoid the possible destructive effects on our trade surplus of strikes or the threat of strikes in key industries."

While such action was unlikely, initial reaction provided an unexpected boost to President Ferdinand E. Marcos campaign to win congressional support for a bill to maintain the Philippines' 2,000-man noncombat commitment in Vietnam. One Philippine congressman called for sending two battalion combat teams to fight along side the allied forces.

Japan, worried over developments in Korea arising from North Korea's seizure of the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo, was shaken by the Viet Cong offensive. But it viewed the latest Communist assaults as "obviously part of a carefully laid out plan prepared well in advance."

Kinya Niseki, spokesman for Japan's Foreign Ministry, said Communist attacks on South Vietnamese cities was unlikely to make a "major change in the course" of the war, he said the assaults were "launched with the aim of exerting a political and psychological influence."

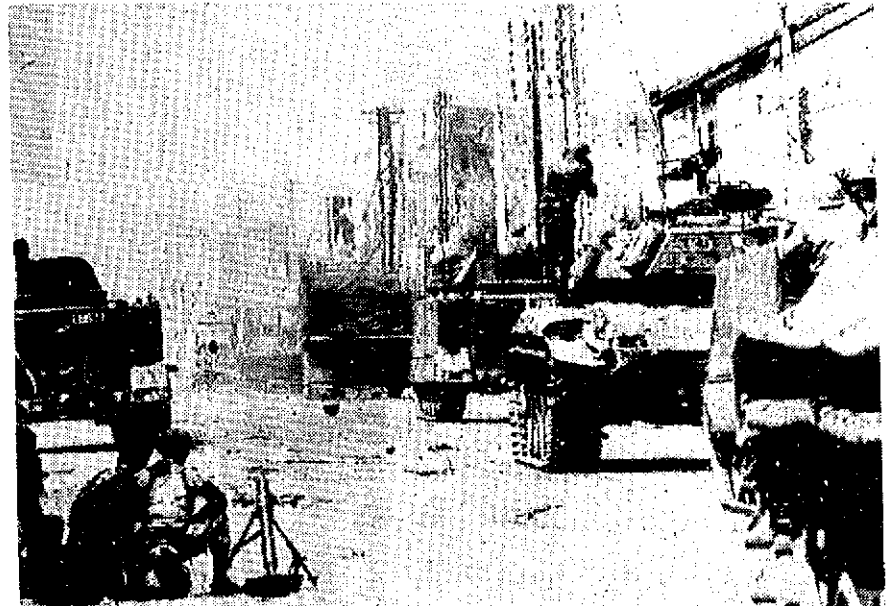

The Pentagon chief's assessment of the conflict, as well as the whole realm of U.S. security matters, was presented to the Senate Armed Services Committee at a closed session.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara reported to Congress Thursday North Vietnam is expected to increase sharply its armed strength in South Vietnam in the next few months.

McNamara's warning, set against a backdrop of guerrilla assaults on Saigon and other South Vietnamese areas, came in a sober accounting of the war effort as he prepares to leave office.

The Pentagon chief's assessment of the conflict, as well as the whole realm of U.S. security matters, was presented to the Senate Armed Services Committee at a closed session.

Snipers roam Saigon; Red attacks continue

SAIGON (AP) — Sniper fire in Saigon streets and battle action at other points up and down South Vietnam marked the opening Friday of the fourth day of a Communist offensive that has cut into resources on both sides.

While the country plunged deeper into chaos, Gen. William C. Westmoreland painted a picture of the blunting of the Red drive. He told newsmen it was a go for broke proposition and there is evidence to suggest the enemy "is about to run out of steam."

"He has, however, some reserves yet to be committed," said the commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam. "We are watching this."

U.S. and Vietnamese troops and aircraft broke up major enemy elements around Saigon, but the Communists carried on harassing operations in small groups.

A large U.S. billet called the Five Oceans came under small-arms fire. There was further shooting around the Tan Son Nhut airbase, northwest of town. South Vietnamese marines tangled with a Communist detachment of undetermined size little more than a mile north of the airbase.

North Vietnamese troops were reported operating alongside Viet Cong in Saigon for the first time. Allied authorities said they were among five enemy battalions—perhaps 2,000 men—which opened the attack on the South Vietnamese capital Tuesday.

One of the crises, at Quang Tri City, abated. The U.S. Command announced helicopter-borne troops and gunships of the 1st Air Cavalry Division restored government control of that provincial capital, 19 miles south of the demilitarized zone, part of which was seized Tuesday by about 800 North Vietnamese regulars.

Westmoreland told newsmen he believed the Communists' campaign is a prelude for their biggest push of the war, to be staged in the northern sector adjoining the DMZ. This main

Attacks anger Asian countries

TOKYO (AP) — Some Asian nations reacted Thursday with shock, anger and concern to the Communist attacks spreading across South Vietnam.

Thailand, engaged in fighting Communist guerrillas of its own, noted that the latest Viet Cong offensive fitted in with a growing Communist drive in Asia.

The army commander in chief, Gen. Praphas Charas-hien, said the Communists had attacked government forces in Burma, Laos, Thailand and South Korea. He urged the non-Communist world to go on "an offensive politically and militarily instead of always being on the defensive."

Filipino's angry
In the Philippines, the Viet Cong attack on the Philippine Embassy in Saigon set off anger and sparked a demand in Congress that Filipino combat units be sent to Vietnam.

While such action was unlikely, initial reaction provided an unexpected boost to President Ferdinand E. Marcos campaign to win congressional support for a bill to maintain the Philippines' 2,000-man noncombat commitment in Vietnam. One Philippine congressman called for sending two battalion combat teams to fight along side the allied forces.

Japan, worried over developments in Korea arising from North Korea's seizure of the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo, was shaken by the Viet Cong offensive. But it viewed the latest Communist assaults as "obviously part of a carefully laid out plan prepared well in advance."

Lindners take off for Sweden

NEW YORK (AP) — The parents of a defector from the Navy now living in Sweden, left from Kennedy Airport Thursday night for a visit with their son.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lindner of Mount Pocono, Pa., were grim-faced and silent as they left for Stockholm on Scandinavian Airlines, flight 908, at 8 p.m.

An airline spokesman said they refused to speak to newsmen because they "have said all they have to say."

The Lindners' son, Michael, was one of four U. S. sailors who jumped ship in Japan and were flown to Stockholm via Moscow by a leftist peace group.

Hostages released unharmed

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Five hostages were taken and released unharmed Thursday during a getaway attempt that led two well-dressed but bungling gunmen—believed to be fugitives from Fort Worth, Tex.—over 250 miles of Colorado mountain highways from the ski resort town of Vail into Denver.

Denver police set up roadblocks on major highways out of the city after the last of the five hostages—which included the Vail police chief—were released here about mid-afternoon.

About two hours after the last two hostages were freed, the two men still had eluded the dragnet and were believed headed south for Colorado Springs.

Suspects
After viewing descriptions of the bandits, police in Fort Worth, Tex., said they believe the two gunmen are Charles Edward Hardin, 26, and Earl Wayne Sanders, 22, wanted in Tarrant County, Tex., on charges of assault to murder, murder and armed robbery.

The sequence of events was strikingly similar to a fabled-up supermarket robbery in Denver Monday, seizure of seven hostages in an escape attempt and finally capture the bandit after a 300-mile chase over the eastern Colorado plains.

The first four hostages taken Thursday were seized about 3 a.m. at the Manor Vail lodge here, after the two men reportedly tried to steal a car and couldn't get it started; tried to rob the lodge and couldn't get any money; tried to force an employee to start his sports car and were duped into believing it wouldn't, and held several persons at gunpoint before starting their flight.

The North Korean hint came in an English-language Pyongyang radio broadcast of a statement by a secretary of the Communist Korean Workers Party, Kim Kwang Ilyop.

Kim said the United States cannot solve the Pueblo affair by military threats, aggressive war or "illegal discussion at the United Nations." But "it will be a different story if they want to

U.S. to push Pueblo case before Korean commission

WASHINGTON (AP) — Responding quickly to a North Korean suggestion, the United States said Thursday it is prepared to try again to seek release of the Pueblo and its crew through the military armistice commission at Panmunjom.

North Korea harshly rebuffed the first U.S. request at the Korean truce commission meeting place Jan. 24, just after the Reds had seized the American intelligence ship and its 83 crewmen.

After 10 days of fruitless attempts to win back the vessel and men through the U.N. Security Council, the International Red Cross and various diplomatic channels, U.S. authorities are willing to make a second effort at Panmunjom.

But no one here is predicting early success. The last time the armistice commission handled a U.S. prisoner case, it took a year of meetings before the Americans—two helicopter pilots—were freed by the Communists.

Hint comes

The North Korean hint came in an English-language Pyongyang radio broadcast of a statement by a secretary of the Communist Korean Workers Party, Kim Kwang Ilyop.

Kim said the United States cannot solve the Pueblo affair by military threats, aggressive war or "illegal discussion at the United Nations." But "it will be a different story if they want to solve this question by methods of previous practice," he said.

Quoting Kim's words, State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey announced "the United States is prepared to deal with this matter through this channel."

"The interest of the U.S. government," he added, "is in obtaining the release of the vessel and its crewmen. I do not want to let modalities and technicalities stand in the way."

Under the procedures of the armistice commission set up at the end of the 1950-53 Korean War, either side can request a meeting when it wants to talk to the other.

Former captive fears for crew

LAKE ZURICH, Ill. (AP) — A former U.S. Army helicopter pilot who was held prisoner by the North Koreans in 1963, told Thursday of beatings and relentless questioning by his captors.

"I hope that they don't treat the 83 crew members of the USS Pueblo like they treated us," said Carleton W. Voltz.

Voltz and another American captain, Ben Stutts, were captured by the Communists in May 1963. Voltz said their captor was downed, apparently by gunfire, after it strayed over the South Korean border into North Korea because of poor radar conditions.

In an AP interview, Voltz said "the captor barely touched the ground before at least 100 soldiers surrounded the craft."

"The soldiers, mostly young men, knocked us around, tied us up and put rice sacks over our heads."

"They took us to a small prison. The cells were filthy and too small to lie down in. Ben Stutts and I were separated there."

"That's when the questioning started, day and night. They would interrogate for three hours, let me sleep for five hours, and then question for five hours. They asked everything from my name and rank to when I graduated from school, and what kind of family I had. They wanted my detailed life history."

Voltz said that when he gave answers, he was not harmed; when he refused to answer, he was beaten.

He said that after five days he was taken to a secluded house where the interrogation continued.

Senator disputes using police in strike of 18,000 miners

HARRISBURG (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Ernest P. Kline questioned Thursday the use of State Police troopers in labor disputes, such as the one currently affecting 18,000 coal mines in western Pennsylvania and in at least two other states.

Kline called for a legislative investigation into whether the troopers were necessary to preserve order at the picketed mine sites.

"In recent years the Pennsylvania State Police have been used more and more in labor disputes — many feel long before their presence is needed to preserve law and order," Kline said in a statement.

Meanwhile, negotiations between the principal parties in the dispute continued under the mediatory direction of William J. Hart, state secretary of labor and industry.

There was no report of any new progress. Hart had announced Wednesday night that the Solar Fuel Co., Somerset, had agreed to accept the United Mine Workers as the bargaining agent for the men who work in the Solar mines — one of the more important issues.

The UMW has been trying to organize small, independent mines in western Pennsylvania. Union miners in eastern Ohio and West Virginia, and possibly Kentucky, have joined in the walkout in sympathy.

"Regarding the dispute at the two mines in northern Somerset county that triggered the UMW strike, use of State Police to disperse pickets prompted strikers to walk out in protest," Kline said.

"This leads one to question the advisability of sending in State Police during critical periods of labor-management negotiations."

The Beaver County lawmaker said his information indicated that more State Police were on duty at picketing sites than pickets.

"This is hardly an efficient function of state constabulary," Kline said.

Earlier, Gov. Shafer had defended the use of State Police troopers at mine sites throughout the bituminous region of Pennsylvania.

"The Pennsylvania State Police have to enforce the law," Shafer said. "They have not been used for the purpose of breaking a strike, nor will they be, but they will, when necessary, step in to preserve order."

Witness now worried about calls

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Morris Singer is worried—about his life.

"What do you think my chances are?" he asked Thursday after disclosing his pleas for police protection—because of alleged telephoned threats—were ignored.

Singer, 42, operates a men's store in suburban Fairless Hills, Pa. He was a witness at a blackmail and extortion trial for two men, who were convicted.

They were freed on bail two weeks ago and ominous phone calls started shortly afterward.

"You got a big mouth, and someday somebody is going to close it for you," Singer quoted one caller.

Another just laughed. One growled. Calls came before dawn, at all hours.

Police suggested Singer should change his telephone number.

Up until last Dec. 27, Singer had been guarded more than a year around-the-clock by detectives.

Singer thinks he's still in danger, notes he has to testify again at the Bucks County trial of Francis J. "Big Bobby" Marino and Salvatore Rispo. At the first trial here, he told how the pair threatened him unless he paid $7,000 interest on a $3,000 loan.

The other day his car was ransacked in the garage of his center city apartment.

State residents in GOP primary

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The names of two Pennsylvania Republicans will be on the March 12 presidential preference primaries ballot in New Hampshire.

One is former Minnesota Gov. Harold Stassen, 60, a perennial candidate for a presidential nomination.

The other is Curtis B. Dall, 70, divorced son-in-law of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

'Sky factory' solves land pinch

PITTSBURGH (AP) — What does a big manufacturer do when it needs to expand a plant, but doesn't have the available land?

Westinghouse Electric Corp. found the answer in the sky. It's simply building on top of its present facility — without the loss of any work below.

"It's kind of like building a boat in your attic," said James M. Wallace, vice president and general manager of the East Pittsburgh division. "Only we'll be able to get the boat out."

When completed late this year the company will have doubled the capacity for manufacturing components for steam generators.

Steel erection for the $4.2 million addition already has been completed. "We were able to keep working right through it all, and the only man hours lost were to sidewalk superintendents," Wallace said.

The existing one-story, 90-foot high structure contains 100,000 square feet of floor space. Because of its heavy steel framework, contractors didn't have to add additional steel supporting beams.

The 11-foot steel roof trusses—unusually large for a building of its type — already provide more than enough strength for overhead cranes and will support the weight of the new factory.

The 25-foot-high, one-story addition also will provide 100,000 square feet of floor space. Aluminum sheeting covers the framework of both the old and new facilities.

The need to expand developed in 1966, with the rapid growth of the electric utility industry and the increased size of the generators.

The division in nearby East

Pittsburgh fills up a 250-acre site on the banks of Turtle Creek. "There simply wasn't any place to build a new plant,"

Horrible, horrible conditions attract 200

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "Men wanted for hazardous journey," said the small newspaper advertisement. "Small wages, bitter cold, long months of complete darkness, constant danger, safe return doubtful. Honor and recognition in case of success."

No, it wasn't a plea for divers to hunt missing H-bombs or submarines. Or a new angle for war zone recruits.

It was a help wanted ad by a life insurance company. The name wasn't listed, only the telephone number.

George Rudy, manager of the firm's Philadelphia office, said, "We're looking for men with creative ability, aggressiveness, imagination — and we think those kind will answer that kind of ad."

In two days he got nearly 200 responses.

"Some wives called and said they thought the job, just as advertised would be perfect for their husbands, whom they claimed were never home anyway," Rudy reported.

"And a few young men really wanted to go out and work in the wilderness somewhere. They thought the job we had was a bad joke."

"I think, though, it proved that people are curious — very curious."

Greene starts tax study

NEWFOUNDLAND — A need for conducting a reassessment of the Greene Township properties was discussed at a recent meeting of the Greene Township Planning Commission in the Newfoundland Elementary School.

The commission members viewed the reassessment as "a benefit to all concerned."

The Delaware Valley Area Joint School District Board of Education for two years had been studying the possibility of a county-wide reassessment.

Sidney Krawitz, solicitor for the Delaware Valley Board of Education and the Wallenpaupack Area School District, had been authorized to arrange a meeting between the two school bodies to coordinate information.

School Boards have the legal power to force a Board of County Commissioners to conduct a reassessment.

In other action, the Commission studied a proposed sub-division ordinance which had been drawn up by the solicitor. No action was taken on the proposed ordinance.

Mrs. Virginia Roebacker of Panther, vice-chairman, presided. The commission has not yet elected a chairman.

Attending the session, in addition to Mrs. Roebacker, were Charles Walters, Albert Haldeman, Edgar Kipp, Fred Schoenagel and Peggy Wriedt, secretary.

Welfare care costs $13,252

(Record Harrisburg Bureau) — HARRISBURG — The State Department of Public Welfare said Thursday during the month of November 68 Monroe County residents were receiving long-term institutional care at a cost total of $13,252, paid for by the state, with the aid of federal funds and some county money.

Of this number, 51 were in county institutions with 49 listed as medically needy persons receiving care totaling $10,355.

The remaining two were blind persons receiving $385 in care. The medically needy persons were not on relief but their bills were paid because they are in a low-income status, according to the department.

17 receive $2,512

Seventeen persons were in private nursing homes listed as old age assistance recipients receiving $2,512.

Expenses were split by the county, state and federal governments with Monroe County paying $4,637, the state $1,151 and the federal government $7,444.

In Pike County 10 county residents were reported by the department in private nursing homes. Nine were listed as old age assistance recipients receiving care totaling $1,842 and one disabled person receiving $215 in care.

Expenses were split by the state and federal governments with the state paying $696 and the federal government $1,361.

Area college sets night classes

GREEN POND — Northampton County Area Community College, as part of its community service program, will offer six non-credit courses in its evening session beginning the week of February 12.

The elementary drawing course is designed for those with a minimal artistic background. It will be taught by Robert E. Doney, a Pen Argyl artist who has gained a wide-spread following in the Lehigh Valley.

The interior design course, offered for those interested in interior architecture and developing design techniques, will be taught by Ralph Stampone, A.I.D., a Northampton County interior designer who resides in Rostow.

The oil painting course is offered for those interested in expressing themselves in this medium. The course will be taught by Francis Quirk, a professor at Lehigh University.

Four classes are being offered in adult speed reading. Last semester these classes were the most popular offered by the College. Jesse Moore of Bethlehem and James Wagner of Westcoast, will each teach two classes.

The course in creative writing is offered for those students interested in writing fiction and nonfiction. It will be taught by Joseph McFadden, a professor at Lehigh University who taught this evening course when it was offered at that institution.

Another non-credit offering is conversational Italian.

New West End A&P to open

BRODHEADSVILLE — The A&P supermarket off Route 209 in Brodheadsville, which had been under construction since early last summer, will officially open during a ribbon-cutting ceremony 9 a.m. Tuesday.

The new supermarket replaces the market on Broad Street, which will close on Saturday.

Officials of the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. announced that Chester Stanowski will be manager of the new facility.

John Tomasko will be head of the meat department and John Kresge will be in charge of the produce department.

Early American

"The new building provides a unique combination of two periods," company officials said. "Its exterior front is Early

American, built of brick and designed in the architectural style of early Colonial homes of New England. Its interior is completely modern. A large paved parking area provides free parking for a great number of cars."

Officials said the new supermarket will feature complete self-service meat department. Fresh fruits and vegetables will be displayed in a more modern refrigerated produce department.

Relocation in West End

Hearing set on Route 209

BRODHEADSVILLE — A public hearing will be conducted 2 p.m. February 20 in the Pleasant Valley High School Auditorium on the proposed relocation of 4.5 miles of Route 209 from Sciota to Brodheadsville.

The State Highway Department currently is making preliminary designs for construction of the route, estimated to cost $3.8 million.

Highway Department officials reported that construction is anticipated to begin in 1970 when final construction plans are scheduled to be completed.

Specifically, the purpose of the public hearing is to determine the economic effect on communities affected by the construction of Route 209.

The proposed relocation construction will begin at a temporary connection with existing Route 209, just west of the intersection of Routes 209 and 115 in Brodheadsville.

The highway would then swing east to an interchange on relocated Township Route 430, then south of existing Route 209. The highway will then continue east, crossing Township Routes 378 and 432, to a proposed interchange with existing Routes 209 and 115, west of McElhenny.

The road will then go northeast, crossing Township Routes 434 and 436 and continue east to a connection with the existing four-lane highway at Sciota.

The entire 4.5 mile span will be four lanes.

Preliminary plans for the highway are currently on file with the Highway Department District Office in Allentown. Plans will be displayed at the public hearing.

Total $43.8 MILLION

The State Highway Department, throughout the past few months, has announced several plans for reconstructing sections of Route 209.

The entire Route 209 reconstruction plans, from Brodheadsville to Matamoras in Pike County, totals $43.8 million.

The most expensive phase, concerning Route 209 is the 27 mile relocation from Rushkill to Interstate 81 near Milford. This relocation is estimated to cost $32.4 million.

Another project is a seven mile by-pass around the Stroudsburgs, estimated to cost $3 million. The by-pass would begin near Bushkill and go somewhere to Interstate 80 between Barlonsville and Stroudsburg.

The relocation of Route 209 between Brodheadsville and Sciota has been on the minds of the State Highway Department officials for some time. The project had been included in the previous five and six year highway improvement program and has been carried over to the new improvement program.

Area FHA loans hit $1.4 million

STROUDSBURG — Credit programs of the U. S. Farmers Home Administration helped more than 61 people in Carbon, Lehigh, Monroe, Northampton and Pike counties improve their homes, family farms and communities during 1967, Supervisor Frank Orendo of the agency's county office in Allentown said Thursday.

Farmers Home Administration loans and grants in the counties totaled $1,488,170 in 1967.

Orendo reported that the Farmers Home Administration, which supplements all other credit available to rural people, had added $1.5 million to the counties' resources with loans and grants the past year through a range of programs.

With the turnover of funds invested by borrower families, associations and communities, the agency's work is estimated to have $10.5 million impact on the counties' economy during 1967.

An estimated 180 people benefited from loans for construction or improvement of 34 family homes in the counties during the year. Housing credit in Pennsylvania has grown from the level of $393,460 in 1960 to $4,425,060 in 1967.

Orendo also reported that the county Technical Action Panel, of which he serves as chairman, has helped local groups plan various projects for community betterment. The TAP is a council of public agencies that helps find sources of technical, financial and other assistance needed to carry out projects for community improvement.

John Eckes, Monroe County Conservationist, is chairman of the local TAP group.

Ruggiero is named to task force

HARRISBURG — Rep. Philip S. Ruggiero of Bangor, this week was appointed as a member of the Joint State Government Commission's task force that will study the need for expanded camping facilities in Pennsylvania.

Ruggiero, a first-term Democrat, was named to the task force by Rep. Herbert Fineman, Democratic House Leader. The task force was set up under the first resolution introduced in the 1967 session of the House of Representatives.

The task force will cooperate with the Department of Forests and Waters and the Budget Office to "study the need for expanding and adding camp grounds, including the construction of more cabins or cottages." It consists of 12 members of the House and six of the Senate.

The resolution establishing the task force points out that Pennsylvania has nearly two million acres of state forest — more than the entire rest of the northeastern part of the United States.

However, the resolution adds that most of the people living in Pennsylvania reside in the eastern or western ends of the state while the forest lands are in the central areas.

"To enjoy Pennsylvania's forest lands, these people must of course drive long distances," the resolution continues.

No time wasted on future waste

Where is our community going to get the water to sustain a potential 10 million extra visitors per year plus a doubled local population in the summer months? And more important, where is our community going to put the waste and sewage from such a throng?

The Delaware River Basin Commission has assumed much of the burden, at least for planning. In its annual report this week the commission reminds that "the prospective influx of people would overwhelm the limited water-supply and waste-disposal facilities now in the Tocks area."

This makes sense, although it is the type of thinking that not many of us enjoying the status quo take time to consider. But the commission is considering.

The commission reports it has had four "task groups" studying (a) population and land use, (b) water supply, (c) liquid wastes and (d) solid wastes.

The greatest problem figures to be with sewage disposal and the commission has listed the alternatives: (a) a regional system with large interceptor sewers conveying waste waters to a central treatment facility located below the Water Gap (possibly around Portland); (b) a series of six subregional systems providing for collection, treatment and disposal of waste water within each; (c) a series of about 60 localized systems; or (d) a combination of subregional and local systems.

The system is certain to cost many millions of dollars but the commission points out the positive side of the situation:

"Some of the severest water quality situations facing the commission elsewhere in the Delaware Basin can be met only by cleanup of existing pollution. By contrast the Tocks Island study . . . happily is able to put the emphasis on prevention rather than cure."

The opportunity to learn from past mistakes couldn't be more obvious.

Poconos cultivated by new Music Center

Music hath charms and when it is good it has tone—and the tone of the Mid Atlantic Music Center is high class.

The music center has committed itself in its second year to a switch from New Paltz, N.Y. on the Hudson River, to the Poconos at Mountainhome. It is an operation consistent with the past and the hopes of the future for our community.

There are many who fear for the future of our charming area as the day of the Tocks Dam approaches. Their fears may yet be realized but they are pushed further and further away by the promise held in such acquisitions as the music center.

The community of the Poconos has long been a patron of the arts to include drama and painting, plus music as the base for Fred Waring. Indeed, all through the glorious summers there are daily dramatic performances and hardly a weekend, it seems, without an art show to beautify further the outdoors. The music camp promises more.

Frequent concerts with a formal festival orchestra composed of many top flight musicians as well as talented newcomers are certain to enthral visitors and residents. And the existence of the camp must raise our musical standards to a new high.

Light side

With Gene Brown

From Wes Gallagher, head of Associated Press:

It is well for the journalist to remember that civilizations of the past faced serious problems which they felt were fully as important (as ours). It is also well to remember that some of these ancient problems were never settled in any black-and-white way, but simply lapsed into a state of tolerability.

Many of our problems today will never be solved but simply will be accepted by generations in the future as undesirable but tolerable.

Last summer Jonathan bought me a special light weight steel-frame LaCrosse tennis racket in France. Several months later the frame separated and we tried to weld it. That didn't work so I wrote to the French department store where it was bought. They refused to answer so I wrote to the American Embassy to jog up to the department store. After several more months they replied that it was all my fault by trying to have it repaired as that destroyed the warranty. I then wrote to the Wilson Bros. Co. in the U.S.A. who now market the racket. The first man wrote back that this was terrible and Wilson would surely do something but he was referring it to a specialist. The Wilson specialist wrote back and said that because of the construction of the racket NO ONE CAN REPAIR IT. My next move is to write to DeGaulle and ask him what in the heck he is going to do about my tennis racket.

Sudden Thought:
"If you want to make your old home look attractive, just price the new ones."

Our 'Pacific Era'

TOKYO — The United States is entering the Pacific Era.

The full meaning is yet to emerge, but we are turning our vision and our energies and much of our resources to the Pacific.

It is evident that, while Europe will continue to occupy a large part of our national concern, we are embracing a substantially Pacific-oriented interest and policy.

We are well embarked on it. Despite the pain and uncertainties of Vietnam, the outlook is more promising than most people realize and I am convinced that to be significantly involved in the Pacific is going to be beneficial to the U.S.

Why are we, as a people and as a nation, becoming deeply concerned and widely involved in the Pacific? Vietnam is only part of it. The larger factors and forces which draw the U.S. into the Pacific Era are these:

ONE — The three most economically powerful nations in the world look out on the Pacific and much of their vital national interest centers there. They are the United States, the Soviet Union, and that dynamic newcomer to the front rank of industrial nations, Japan.

TWO — Two of these three super-powers — the U.S. and Japan — are close, trusted, and interlocked allies. Each is the other's crucially valuable Asian partner. Our largest national interests are parallel and mutually sustaining at every major point. And the time may come when the Soviet Union will find that it has a common stake with the U.S. and Japan in keeping the peace in Asia.

THREE — America's two newest states, Alaska and Hawaii, are thrust deeply into the Pacific and symbolize the stake which the United States has for the stability of the Pacific area.

FOUR — A fourth potential super-power — Red China — already possessing nuclear arms, also borders the Pacific. Its conduct, good or bad, provocative or peaceful, profoundly concerns the other three.

Doomsday plot

WASHINGTON — Oddly enough, the whole world seems upset about the way we keep losing H-bombs here and there. What folks of other lands don't seem to realize is that when you have as many H-bombs as we do, it's hard not to lose a few.

However, I discovered that there may be more to this thing than meets the eye while talking to Prof. Wolfgang Von Blast, a science instructor at an obscure Pennsylvania college. (In fact, it's the very same college at which those six LSD-taking students went blind after staring at the sun.)

"All I need from you, professor, is a statement that those H-bombs we lost near Thule, Greenland, are perfectly harmless, unless s armed," I said. "And perhaps you could add that it was just a little accident and so forth."

"Well, he said, 'Unfortunately, it was NOT an accident. Any more than it was an accident that we lost an H-bomb off the coast of Spain two years ago. By the way, we never found that one, you know. We merely pretended to, to make Spain feel better. The Spanish are naive children.'"

"Hum," I said, "Go on, professor, this might make an interesting story."

"Very well. You see, what we're doing is sowing H-bombs in a pattern around the earth. Years ago a secret geological study, conducted during an around-the-world, submerged cruise by a nuclear submarine, revealed that there is a natural fault in the earth's crust. This fault runs around the globe.

"We are carefully planting H-bombs all along it. Of course, we are not lying when we say these 'lost bombs' are not armed. But what we are not emphasizing is the fact that NO

FIVE — In one generation the United States has fought three wars in the Pacific and must prevent further war.

I have suggested that the outlook for the new Pacific Era, which is now just opening up and soon will be in full tide, is promising. There is much evidence that it is.

Its centerpiece is Japan.

Here is a nation which has massively modernized itself in a little more than a decade. It has achieved a sustained rate of economic growth higher than any other country in the world and a gross national product exceeded only by the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. Its government achievement, including the highest standard of living in Asia, is a radiant example of what a free-enterprise economy can do for a people given the opportunity.

Other successful nations

But Japan is not the only success story of the Pacific. There are others and they are beginning to show that the momentum and the wave of the future are on the side of the non-Communist Pacific nations. Korea is another economic success — and so is Taiwan. Many thought that neither could survive. They are not only surviving; they are thriving both economically and politically.

The headlines are presently focused on the unfinished struggle for security and nationhood in Vietnam. They should be, but much that is extraordinarily promising is in progress elsewhere in the Pacific. Thailand, Malaysia, Burma, the non-Communist part of Laos, and preeminently Indonesia are proving the domino theory in reverse; they are beginning to stand up on their own feet. Each is showing a new confidence, a new sense of security born, in part, by America's stand in Vietnam.

I am reporting that the Pacific Era is with us, the United States is a part of it, and in its own best interests could not refrain from being a part of it.

H-bombs are armed until needed. Then they are armed by radio, with a signal sent from Omaha. This can be done whether the bomb is in a plane or under the sea.

"Why are we doing this, professor?"

"That should be obvious. When we get enough H-bombs in place around the world along the fault, with a push of a button we will be able to crack the earth in half, like a walnut. Then we can tell Russia that should she attack us, we'll destroy the world."

"Golly Ned! I said, 'the 'Doomsday Machine.' Just like in 'Dr. Strangelove.'"

"You've got it. Any day now I expect the White House to reveal what we've been doing. Then Russia will construct a 'Doomsday machine' of its own. At that point everyone will scrap his bombers and missiles, nobody will dare attack anyone else and, in this way, peace, at last will come to the world."

"Gee, that would be keen."

ASIDE — North Vietnam, Laos, Thailand, Cambodia, North Korea South Korea and South Vietnam are all involved in hostilities. Any day now the White House may admit that what we have here is a land war in Asia.

You can't blame Britain for not wanting our TFX jet fighter. Even our own Navy doesn't want it.

The President is taking a chance, ordering up various reserve and National Guard units. If they leave, how will we protect our cities against riots at home?

Clark Clifford might never become Defense Secretary if he would wait until things calmed down before taking over.

Zoologist dissects human animal

THE NAKED APE. By Desmond Morris. McGraw-Hill. $3.95.

We're all just animals, after all. We're the only one of 193 living species of apes and monkeys that is not covered with hair. "Behind the facade of city life there is the same old naked ape," a vertical, hunting, weapon-toting, territorial, brainy creature, a fruit-eating primate by adoption, whose pair-forming habits as a hunting animal gave rise to the modern institution of marriage, and whose recent cultural achievements are but a thin gloss on the genetic patterns of millions of years.

And there's no assurance that this human animal will not follow other exciting species into oblivion, for "our unbelievably complicated civilizations will be able to prosper only if we design them in such a way that do not clash with or tend to suppress our basic animal needs."

These are some of the key observations that Morris makes. He is a zoologist, deliberately setting out to examine the human race as a biological specimen, and taking the hard, negative view of its prospects. He studies our ancestry in the framework of origins, sex, rearing, exploration, fighting, feeding and comfort, turning up all sorts of explanations for modern customs and practices.

Morris sounds several warnings against overpopulation. He cites a number of studies showing that in extreme overcrowding, animals go berserk and become self-destructive. Again, in discussing war, he doubts that any "intellectual" solutions, such as disarmament, will be effective among the naked apes, and concludes that the "only sound biological solution" would be "massive depopulation."

There are plenty of controversial passages in this book, and it never is dull. The author is a behaviorist, and not everyone will go along with that pattern of thought. Religious people will be upset by his dismissal of the idea of an afterlife, and his small concession that religion has been "immensely valuable as a device for aiding social cohesion."

This is the sort of book that is bound to set up a lot of chattering among us apes.

Deft portrait of Thomas Wolfe

THOMAS WOLFE. By Andrew Turnbull. Scribner's. $7.95.

Turnbull has an advantage over most biographers — he writes very well, and that makes a great difference in the way his subject comes to life. He demonstrated that skill in his biography of Scott Fitzgerald, and he demonstrates it again in this story of an equally colorful figure in American literature.

Wolfe was a giant in more than the physical, life-living sense; everything that he attempted and everything that he managed to achieve were on the grand, extravagant scale, and appropriately Turnbull has done his portrait full length.

The whole story is here — Wolfe's early life, his schooling at Chapel Hill and Harvard, his early frustrations and failures as a writer, his restless wanderlust, his womanizing, his lyrical gift, his literary mistakes, his bohemian disregard for convention, his prejudices, his distrust of the success he achieved, his feuds with people who tried to help him the whole rambunctious chronicle of a man who charged through life at high speed.

Naturally, two individuals play a large part in the story. One is Aline Bernstein, the older married woman who became his mistress in the early part of his career. Turnbull does not hesitate to show how shabbily Wolfe treated her when he broke off the affair.

editor, who had the task of trying to curb and control Wolfe's "flood tide river" of words upon thousands of words.

Turnbull brings in just enough material about Wolfe's novels to show how they developed out of his own life; he sticks to his main theme of the man rather than the words.

This book should stand a long time as an understanding picture of a genius who also was a tormented volcano of a man.

Travel dollars

U.S. BALANCE OF PAYMENTS (in billions of dollars)

WASHINGTON — The Johnson Program to reduce the balance-of-payments deficit by $3 billion in 1968 is a stop-gap operation. The President wants, among other things, to cut private investment abroad, reduce overseas spending by government agencies, and observe a two-year moratorium in "non-essential" foreign travel.

The motivation is obvious. U. S. gold holdings are now below $12 billion. In August 1949, at their peak, they came to $24.8 billion.

A major contributor to our chronic balance-of-payments deficits — and thus to drain on U. S. gold — is what is called the tourist dollar gap. Secretary of State Dean Rusk on Jan. 4 said American tourists spent $4 billion abroad in 1967 while foreign travelers spent $2 billion in the United States. The $2 billion gap would represent more than half of last year's estimated $3.5 billion payments deficit.

The Administration would like to reduce the tourist dollar gap by $500 million this year. The proposal is less ambitious than it may sound. Of last year's spending by Americans abroad, according to the U. S. Department of Commerce, $400 million was a "one-shot" increase attributable to travel to Expo 67 in Montreal.

The administration has not spelled out legislatively how it plans to cut back travel spending. Some suggestions include a head or passport tax, a tax on plane and ship tickets, further curbs on duty-free spending, and plain moral suasion.

All are open to reasonably easy evasion, and all seem to have a built-in element of regression. Already it is being argued that any tax measure would fall lightly on the so-called jet set, but would hit hard the types of Americans the administration would most like to see travel — students and teachers. Some exemptions might be feasible.

The President's proposals have drawn scattered fire from Capitol Hill. But Chairman Wilbur D. Mills (D Ark.) of the House Ways and Means Committee says that Americans just may have to give up the pleasures of Europe for a while.

Meanwhile, in encouraging increased travel here by Europeans, the U.S. Travel Service and private tourist groups are sponsoring exploratory visits by European travel agents. And in April a group of some 30 managers of convention bureaus of American cities will tour Europe to drum up trade.

Rep. Henry S. Reuss (D Wis.) on Jan. 15 introduced a bill to provide $100 in free travel stamps to Europeans visiting the United States for the first time. A less publicized suggestion is to make available to U. S. tourists abroad — in exchange for dollars — a blocked "counterpart" funds, held by our own government abroad.

Non-surgical cures

Can Gall Bladder disease and gallstones be cured without surgery?

The two parts of this question must be separated. Gall bladder disease may be caused by an inflammation or infection of the gall bladder, the cause may be immoderate alcohol intake or indulgence in fried or fatty foods.

A single attack of gall bladder disease can often be treated with diet and drugs and may never reappear. Surgery therefore, is not necessary unless the attacks are frequent and incapacitating.

Gallstones within the gall bladder are almost always the result of chronic infection, high cholesterol diets, chronic alcoholism and marked obesity.

The gall bladder can be studied with remarkable accuracy. Special pills are swallowed which become concentrated within the gall bladder. This dye is readily seen on the x-ray plate.

The speed with which the gall bladder empties itself of the dye is a good indication to the x-ray specialist of its health and disease. Gall bladder stones can be readily recognized by this same method.

It is surprising how often gallstones are unexpectedly found when patients are X-rayed for other conditions. The stones may have been there for years without causing any of the painful colicky spasms of the upper right side of the abdomen. When gallstones block the ducts through which bile flows from the gall bladder to the intestine surgery almost always is necessary.

Only rarely does a gall bladder stone that has been causing trouble pass into the intestine. Surgery is almost always the safest and the simplest form of treatment.

What danger is there in wearing a truss, rather than having surgery for a hernia?

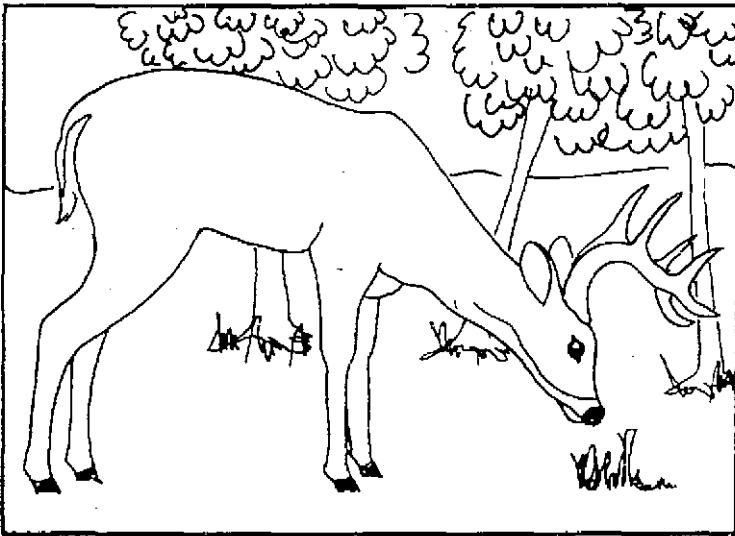

There are many different kinds of hernia. I assume that the hernia referred to is the one that occurs in the groin in both men and women.

A hernia is a defect in the protective wall through which some organ of the body pushes and interrupts normal function. Most hernias are the result of some abnormality of development. Occasionally, a hernia may develop after injury or surgery of the abdomen.

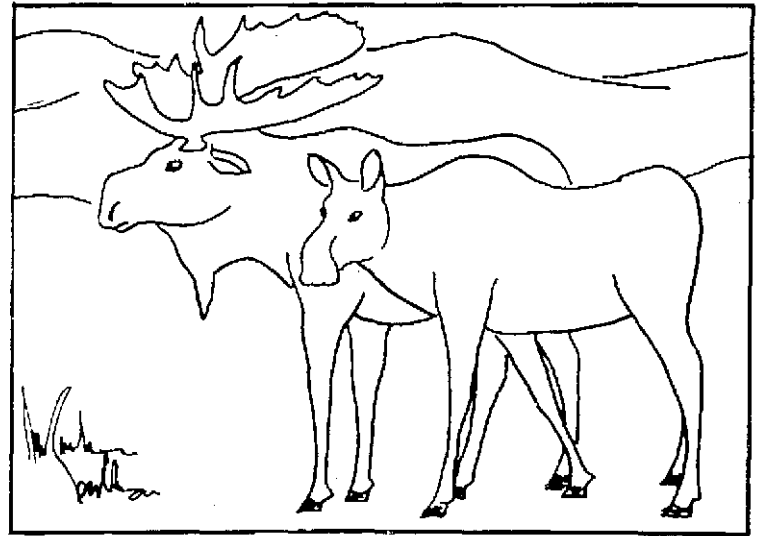

A truss does not cure a hernia, but rather does it protect and keep the intestines from becoming caught in the open ring. This is probably the single most important reason why hernias are best treated by surgery.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

Well, at least it cleared up long enough to let us see just how dirty the windows are. Actually, it even took some of the mildew out of our dispositions, temporarily.

There's only one depressing note: we're going to have to stay in February a whole day longer than usual (this year on account of leap year).

Leap Year, as everybody knows, originated in the Julian Calendar of 365 days, adopted in 46 B.C., with an extra day added every four years to make it come out even with the astronomical year.

This did it, except that the Julian year was 11 minutes longer than the astronomical year and by the time Gregory started to reform the calendar in 1582, the world was ten days behind the rest of the solar universe.

To make up the ten days, he arbitrarily announced that Oct. 5, 1582, would be Oct. 15, 1582. This raises some interesting speculations about what happened to those lost ten days. Must have mused up the social calendar pretty drastically, not to mention time payments, birthday presents, rent, pay checks, and subscriptions to your favorite newspaper.

It also raises the question, "Why October?" when we could so much more easily spare them in late February or early March. Especially since, if, to keep the same thing from happening again, Gregory hadn't introduced that bit about also adding a day when a year was divisible by 400, we would now be 14 days behind, almost.

And now, having learned more about Leap Year than you ever wanted to know, you'll have to make your own practical application. You'll also have the opportunity of finding out for yourself whether, in the year 2,000, you'll have two extra days because it is divisible by both 4 and 400. It isn't likely to be my problem anyway.

Family spaghetti supper Saturday in Canadensis

Canadensis — A family spaghetti supper has been set for Saturday, February 3 at the Canadensis Moravian Church.

Members of the Ladies Guild of the Church will serve the meal beginning at 4:30 p.m. The women will prepare the food and will also make homemade pies and cakes for the choice of desserts to be offered following the meal.

Prices for adults and children will be posted the night of the dinner.

At previous spaghetti dinners, each diner was given a homemade bib to wear for the meal. These bibs are made by members of the guild and add an informal touch to what has become an annual event at the church.

Proceeds from the dinner will be used by the guild for church benevolences.

Involvement is substituted for self-pity by widow

by ROBERTA ROESCH
When you open your eyes to life's potentials and involve yourself with living, new opportunities can come so close one will follow another.

"That's exactly what I found," said a woman who told me her story this week. "My husband died before I was 40," she said, "and at first, I disengaged myself from life and sat around feeling sorry for myself for an endless number of dreary weeks."

Repeated reminder
"I told myself repeatedly that life was over for me and my one interest was telling people that all the richness was gone. I made it clear to everyone that I had no purpose for living. Then one day, after I had become a bore to everyone, I guess, my minister called on me and told me very emphatically that I must allow life to go on."

"Somehow his phrase 'allow life to go on' made an impression. I suddenly saw the futility of living in an empty past when I could have a full future if I opened my eyes to life's potentials."

"To realize her new opportunities and involve herself with living this widow took a first step by moving to a new community where she would not feel out of place in the frame work of the type of social life she and her husband had known."

Once she was settled in her new home and ready to start fresh, she dusted off her college degree, took some refresher courses and obtained a job teaching English in a local high school.

On for her masters
"Before too long, teaching led to the next opportunity of going to school for a master's degree in English, with an accent on speech and drama," she said. "After going evenings and summers, I completed the work for this degree."

"Next, the work I did in speech and drama enabled me to be elected president of our

Indoor means of raising tomato plants successful

By GEORGE ABRAHAM
Record Garden Correspondent
START YOUR OWN TOMATO PLANTS: If you've been having trouble raising your own tomato plants try this trick from a reader:

"We mix up a loose mixture of sand, peat and a little garden soil, bake it in oven at 180 degrees for one-half hour. Then we take a cardboard milk container (half-gallon size), slice top off lengthwise, and fill half full with the soil mixture. Then we sow 10 seeds in two rows.

Seed is sprinkled with a little peat moss. As the plants grow, instead of transplanting them, we gradually add more soil around each plant, until the box is full. We wait until the last day of March to sow the seed.

On warm days, the boxes are set outside for a while to help harden them. Care must be taken not to overwater because there's no drainage in the waxed container. I've never lost a seedling with this method. Do not fertilize until planting into the garden when danger of frost is over."

Our reader continues: "We enjoy your articles and in spite of our advancing years we feel gardening is a healthy, worthwhile hobby. We dread the time when our age will force us to give it up!"

BOYSENBERRIES — WHAT ARE THEY? You hear a lot about Boysen berries, Dewberries, and Loganberries, but few people ever take the trouble to explain what they are and what they'll do for gardeners.

I'll try to explain what they are.

First, the Loganberry. It's a hybrid or plant "mutant" originated in California by a Judge Logan who produced a cross between a western blackberry (a Dewberry) and a red raspberry.

The result: a loganberry, a plant not altogether hardy in northern gardens, unless you take the trouble to mulch them heavily with straw.

Boysenberries are a cross between a Loganberry, raspberry and blackberry. Berries are tremendous — often more than two inches long, and very delicious. Canes are long and thorny and must be covered in winter if fruit is to be produced. If you're willing to fuss with it, you can protect the canes and grow them on trellises in summer. Plant them six feet apart.

If you want to try dewberries, grow the Lucretia, not hardy in north, unless you give it protection. Then there's a Youngberry, similar to the Boysen dewberry (or Boysenberry) and it comes with spines and without spines. The Youngberry and the Boysenberry are replacing the Loganberry.

There's also a Nectarberry which is similar to the Boysen and there's a thornless Boysen for your garden. Don't go overboard on the thornless sports since they are not as productive as the thorny plants.

In general, all the brambles just mentioned take about the same care. Try not to grow Boysenberries where tomatoes, peppers, eggplants and peppers have grown recently since these crops sometimes infect the soil with a wilt disease.

Boysenberries and its relatives are started by layering tips of new canes in fall. They root in spring and can be cut from the mother plant. Mulch the plants with sawdust, straw, plastic sheet or whatever is available, to keep down weeds, conserve moisture and give juicy berries.

CRACKING WALNUTS: Those who raise their own nuts feel that a vise is the best way to crack walnuts. It works good for us, and most of the walnut meats come out in halves. This works for hickory nuts also, although some varieties have poor cracking qualities.

GERANIUMS CAN BE CUT BACK: If you hung your geraniums in plastic bags, now's a good time to take them out of the cellar, cut the tops back and pot them up in four-inch pots. A good soil mixture consists of one-third each sand, peat and loam. Grow them in a bright window and keep the soil uniformly moistened for better growth.

Yellowing of leaves is due to poor drainage, lack of light, or dry soils. You can start new plants by inserting tip cuttings into a pot of moist sand, perlite or vermiculite.

Incidentally, have you noticed tiny flies around your house plants and in soils? These are fungus gnats and aren't too serious. Control: Dust some DDT or chlordane in soil and water it in. This will kill the larvae (tiny grubs) and will also check springtails as well as symphylids and other soil pests.

PRUNING GRAFTED PLANTS: Favorite plants such as Schwedler Norway Maple, Koster, blue spruce, purple-leaved plum, Japanese Maples, grafted lilac and many other forms, nurserymen have had to graft the desired form on the root of a different plant — one that is closely enough related and particularly vigorous.

When you prune such grafted plants, if done too vigorously, it stimulates the bottom to send out branches from base. For example, if a grafted lilac ("tree" lilac) is cut back too severely, the privet root (lilacs are grafted on privet), will send up privet instead of lilac growth. The privet will take over. If a purple-leaved plum is cut back too much, the root will send up branches with green leaves. Many grafted items will do this automatically — send up shoots from the base. Take a pair of clippers and cut out any growth coming up from the base of any grafted plants. It's "wild" and may crowd out the "tame" or good growth.

YOU CAN'T BEAT IMPATIENS: The so-called "Impatiens" is one of the best flowering plants you can get for the shady part of your border or garden. Plant breeders have gone hog wild and produced new hybrids with exciting splash of colors which come true from seed. You can start new plants by seed.

Although many feel that seed-grown plants provide a quick show, you can start your plants from cuttings very easily. All you do is snip off the tips and place them in a glass of plain tap water. Some gardeners believe that plants from seeds are stronger and branch more freely.

This item has seeds of pet names, including "Busy Lizzie," "Patient Lucy," to name a couple. Impatiens is Latin for "impatience," alluding to the fruit pad's tendency to pop open on contact. That's why some call it Snapweed, and touch-me-not.

questions

F. R. of Portland — "We have dwarf apple trees (Red Astrachan) and some five-on-one varieties. We spray regularly and still the Red Astrachan bears only small nubbins fruits. We were recently told we might as well pull the tree out and throw it away, as it's wild. Is that true?"

Yes, it could be. When dwarf apple trees are grown in the nursery, cuttings of the dwarfing stock, usually the East Malling IX stock, are planted in spring. Then in August of that year, a bud from a tame Red Astrachan, or any other cultivated variety, is budded into the stock just above ground level.

The following spring the stock is cut back to the bud, and the bud is allowed to grow the new top. Then the tree is ready for orchard planting either the second fall or second spring after budding. Sometimes the bud fails to grow and a wild shoot from the rootstock makes the new top.

This is probably what you have — a wild or rootstock tree. Unskilled help in the nursery could very easily dig the tree mistakenly as a budded one. It is not until the tree begins to fruit that this mistake can be discovered. Fruits of EM IX are small and of no value. Do not pull out tree. It can be grafted over to any variety and a good crop expected in a few years.

D. F. of Marshall's Creek — "Our rubber plant just seems to stand still. Others have rubber plants that grow six feet tall. What care does it need?"

Rubber plants ordinarily aren't too difficult to grow. Yours might have soil insects in the bottom, such as symphylids, which attack the feeder roots and dwarf the plant.

Here's what I'd do: Knock the plant out of the pot, remove most of the soil and repot in a fresh mixture. Also dust a little DDT or chlordane into the soil and water it in, just in case there are some worms left.

Apply a little liquid plant food once every three or four weeks. Grow in a semi-shady window and keep soil uniformly moistened. Good drainage is most important.

M. K. of Bushkill: "We want to start our own tomato plants this spring. What's the best variety and what's the best material in which to start them?"

There's no one best variety. My advice is to try two or three kinds and stick to the ones that do best for you. Start seed in a mixture of peat and sand, plus some vermiculite.

Wait until the first of April or so, because if you start them too early, plants will be spindly and weak. I like to start them in a box and transplant each seedling into small peat pots. These are set out with the plant and there is no shock of transplanting.

Pepper seed is slow to germinate and if you want to start your own plants, it better be in late February. Biggest mistake in starting your own seed is sowing too thickly.

Keep seeds moistened, by placing a sheet of paper or pane of glass over the seed after the mixture has been thoroughly watered.

When Our Ship Comes In

Remember, as a child, how keenly you looked forward to that day mother so often talked about "When Our Ship Comes In."

Perhaps there was something you especially wanted, or there may have been some problem or severe hardship the family had to face, or perhaps there were dreams you longed to have come true, then mother would express the cheerful hope that all would be well "When Our Ship Comes In."

When one abandons the hope of seeing his ship—when faith dies—then we are old, whether we be thirty or ninety.

Your church can be a great influence in keeping alive faith—in hope that dreams will come true. Avail yourself of its aid. Attend regularly and your dreams, although they may change with the years, will nevertheless come true and YOUR SHIP WILL COME IN.

Overprotective son

Dear Ann Landers: Our 10-year-old son, who is very large for his age, answered me in a manner which I consider disrespectful and smart-alecky. I turned around and gave him a swat on the bottom. He grabbed hold of my hand and twisted my wrist. When his father came home I told him about the incident and he replied, "That's all right. The boy was merely protecting himself." This conversation took place in front of the boy who sat there smirking because his Dad had taken his side. The next day I went to hit the boy with a belt. He snatched it away from me and shouted, "Dad says I should protect myself and I'm going to do it." The boy's father has never laid a hand on him. I've always had to do all the disciplining. Now that the boy is getting older I think his dad should hit him and not leave it to me. Please give me your views as things are going from bad to worse.

N.Y.
Dear N.Y.: Don't expect a father who has never disciplined a child to "take over" all of a sudden. He won't do it. Your best bet is to stop hitting the kid and come up with punishment that means something — such as no TV, no movie, no dessert, no hand combat it's time for a change of tactics, Mother.

Dear Ann Landers: When a person says, "Please stop me if you've heard this one," is it good manners to stop him if you have actually heard the joke before?

I have always kept quiet but I'm beginning to think perhaps should take the drawing room borer at their work — especially the ones who crucify a good story because they can't handle the dialect.

HO HUM
DEAR HO: The person who invites you stop him if you've heard the story doesn't really want you to stop him. He wants to tell the story. So, let him. Consider it an excuse in discipline for you — and therapy for him.

Do you feel ill at ease — out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Planners eye joint services

STROUDSBURG — The Stroudsburg Planning Commission Wednesday night decided to meet with the East Stroudsburg Planning and Zoning Board of Adjustment to discuss possible merger of community services. Leon Zacher, chairman of the East Stroudsburg Planning Board, in a letter, had invited the Stroudsburg Board to participate in a joint meeting to plan for a possible merger of municipal services. Edward Driebe, member of the Stroudsburg Planning Commission, said the two boards should meet to discuss the possibility and then possibly a joint meeting could be held in the future with the two Borough Councils.

Arranging royalties

DEAR CY: Back in the days when I was very creative, I cooked up an idea and had it patented. I still feel it could help the housewife every day in the kitchen and want to get someone to buy my patent and manufacture the item. How do I find someone who might be able to pay me a royalty, and how much would that be?

BERKSHIRE

DEAR BERKSHIRE: Royalty arrangements vary as much as shoppers' impulses in a supermarket. One inventor, offering a patent last week for a consumer item, required a $1,000 down payment and five per cent of the manufacturer's wholesale selling price. He also requested a guarantee of $100 a month from the manufacturer after the first year.

Very often patent attorneys can help locate a user of patents from among their clients and I urge you to make contact. You might also wish to run newspaper want ads seeking someone with whom to deal. An advantage of a classified ad in your local paper is the prospect can be nearby where you can see the whites of his eyes. You may also wish to have the availability of your patent aired in the New Product Newsletter, published by Corporate Diversification Ltd., 135 East 44th Street, New York City.

Run by ex-adman Peter Hilton, N.P.N. lists patents at liberty for the benefit of subscribers to his eight-page monthly sheet. The publication fills a need among those buying and selling patents and was practically spawned by good fortune. A friend of Hilton's visited his girl in Denmark. At a gathering there, one Danish businessman said, "I know anyone in America who wants to market my cream cheese patent?" Being shrewd, Hilton's friend didn't say "no!" but "I'll look into it."

Trouble was the fellow had a fussy boss so he turned the patent selling project over to Peter Hilton who maintains a high degree of enterprising flexibility. You guessed it. Hilton proved himself very accomplished at turning Danish cream cheese into a silk purse. Then, sensing a vacancy in the field of patent matchmaking, he took on publishing the New Products Newsletter. It's almost as simple as that . . . at $50 per subscriber per year.

The keepers of this bridge are versatile

Lady waits for New York lane

Water Gap toll takers are real live 'medicine men'

By PETE GRADY
Pocono Record Reporter
DELAWARE WATER GAP — Certain people make stops and starts past their name plates twice a day, five times a week; names like Possinger, Cook, Kaiser, Carlton, Martin and Vanderwal — they're the toll sergeants at the Delaware Water Gap Toll Bridge.

The driver rolls down his window and gives them the fare: a quarter for passenger cars or on up to a $1 for a truck with three axles or more. And then there are the toll officers: Barlow, Flick, Marvin, Dittmore, Branch, Halterman, Romano, Brown, Bray, Lee, Stout, Clark and Tilwick.

And four East Stroudsburg State College students who work in the toll booths on weekends: Harmon, Sladin, Wagner and Baxtor.

Men and boys alike, they get to know the faces of commuters, weekend vacationists, truckers making the early morning run down into New York's garment district.

"How's the weather? The ice is real slick up around Mount Pocono. Can you change a $50 bill? Good lord, I don't have any money? How do you get to Honeymoon Haven?"

Just a sample of the daily patter of here — today — and gone — tomorrow conversation. The toll booth officers try to answer each and every question.

Could write book
Does the job get boring? Not according to Sgt. Bennet Vanderwal of Blairtown, N. J. Vanderwal, an 11-year veteran at the Gap Toll Bridge, said, "If I ever get the time, I'll sit down and write a book on all the people that have passed through these tolls."

The heaviest bridge traffic is not during the two main summer holidays, July 4th and Labor Day weekend, but at the height of the fall foliage and the two weekends that straddle deer season, according to David Price, superintendent, District Three, which includes the Gap Bridge, the Portland-Columbia and the Milford-Montague Bridges.

Toll officers are assigned to one of three shifts, two sergeants to each shift. The round-the-clock shifts are 11 p.m. - 7 a.m.; 7 a.m. - 3 p.m. and 3 p.m. - 11 p.m. Some officers like the afternoon shift, others prefer the midnight or morning shifts.

Seven booths
There are seven booths and eight lanes and the center booth can handle both east and west bound traffic if the vehicular count becomes heavy.

The bridge took in more than a $1 million in revenue in 1967, according to an estimate by Price. 378,969 vehicles crossed the bridge during July and paid out $94,629.

Each booth is heated by a series of pipes which run underneath the concrete plaza from a basement in the bridge commission headquarters to the individual booths.

Inside every booth is a vertical row of ten buttons, a key box which registers vehicular classifications.

The classifications range from No. one, passenger cars; No.

two, commuters tickets; No. three, buses to No. four through No. 10, two to five axle trucks, with the exception of No. six which is for commission vehicles.

A toll officer does more than just take and make change. He gives out information on resorts, roads, Interstate 80 exits, weather conditions and if junior has to make an emergency trip to a certain place, the officer will direct him to a rest room inside the commission building.

Credit passage
If a motorist doesn't have the money for the toll, the officer will request identification and then make out a "receipt in lieu" slip.

"We handle almost anything and everything," Sgt. Vanderwal said. "Motorists run out of gas, we put enough gas in their tank to get them to the nearest gas station. If a child feels a little car sick, we'll take them into the office for a glass of water. We also give first aid to truckers."

Vanderwal remembered a freak accident in which a trucker caught a ring on his finger in a hook on top of the truck. "He was hanging from this hook with the ring driven up underneath his skin," Vanderwal said.

The ring and the trucker's finger were lifted up off the hook but the next time the trucker saw Vanderwal, he was minus the finger — gangrene had set in and the doctors had to amputate the finger.

People ask all kinds of questions.

One day an officer saw two elderly ladies sitting in a car parked in front of one of the closed lanes. The officer asked if he could help them. One of them said, "Oh no, we're perfectly alright. We're just waiting for the New York lane to open up."

More than one driver headed for New York City will ask a toll officer the mileage to Manhattan. The officer answers and then comes the reply, "How long will it take me to get there?"

Delaware Water Gap toll bridge officer Harold Bartown of Belvidere, N.J. hands a commutation ticket to a motorist and bids him fond farewell with one of his many daily, "Thank you sir," greetings.

Supervisor endorses new road

BRODHEADSVILLE — Floyd Altemose, president of the Chestnut Hill Township Supervisors, gave his personal approval Thursday night to the proposed section of the new Rt. 209 in the area of Brodheadsville.

He said that a highway official had told him that the highway engineers would "keep Brodheadsville businessmen in mind" in the routing of the 4.2 mile addition of Rt. 209, from Sciota to Brodheadsville.

During a township supervisors meeting in the basement of the Chestnut Hill Elementary School, neither the supervisors nor several West End Volunteer firemen would comment on the effect of land, property and business posed by the relocated highway when asked by The Pocono Record for a statement on the land acquisition.

Later on in the meeting, after Altemose had referred to the Brodheadsville businessmen, Delbert Heller questioned the Pennsylvania Highway Dept. setting up a public meeting on the relocation of Rt. 209 at the Pleasant Valley High School on a weekday.

The public hearing "to determine the economic conditions of the highway through Brodheadsville" will be held on Tuesday, Feb. 20, at 2 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

The highway plans will be exhibited between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. in the auditorium and also at the Allentown District Office of the Pennsylvania State Highway Dept. weekdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

In other business the supervisors: — approved payment of $12,945 to Ray Hartman and Sons, East Stroudsburg, for a front end loader.

— announced a "Wet Down" by the West End Volunteer Fire Co. to be held on Feb. 11 at 2 p.m.

Food plan decision nears

STROUDSBURG — The eventual "phasing out" of the county's surplus food program upon acceptance of the substitute Food Stamp Plan was explained to the Monroe County Commissioners Thursday by Robert J. Freiler, director of the state Bureau of Surplus Food.

Freiler said that if Monroe County would accept the Food Stamp plan the Surplus Food Administration would be eliminated as caseworkers from the state would assume the positions with the stamp program.

Last week, the new program was explained in detail to the board by Donald J. Dougherty, from the field office of Public Assistance.

Freiler, although representing a system that could be eliminated by the county, said he endorsed the plan and that it gave dignity to the type of assistance and a selection of foods to the recipient.

He also echoed the words of Dougherty saying that it would put more food on the tables of low income families.

Freiler told the board that the plan "is evidently working out" throughout the country and said the entire states of Vermont and W. Virginia are aided by the plan.

40 counties
Food Stamps are the authorized food program in 40 of Pennsylvania's 67 counties and recently Monroe was included in an additional 10 as approved recipients of the program.

Freiler said that if the program was approved by the county, June 1, 1968, would be set as the implementation date with final surplus food distribution set for May.

He told the board that the transition in programs "is very orderly" and that commodities left after inventory could be taken to designated points.

PVM budget up $85,000

By RICK METHOT
Pocono Record Reporter
STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Commissioners Thursday released a $391,403 operating budget for Pleasant Valley Manor in 1968, an increase of more than $85,000 from Manor spending last year. Commissioner chairman Elwood Hintze revealed the amount after withholding it following Monday's meeting for further study.

Hintze said he thought the budget was "way out of line," and said a meeting with Pleasant Valley Administrator Lawrence Butz will be held Tuesday to review the county home budget.

Hintze said that after receiving the figure, an increase over last year's $327,330, he believed there might be a mistake in addition but said today there was no mistake following a detailed study of the figures.

The board chairman cited salaries as the largest increase in the total and listed the increase at $63,000.

A breakdown of the total shows the following comparison in the 1967 and 1968 budgets for the manor.

Administration: 1967 — $18,200; 1968 — $19,098.

Shapp's music plans

STROUDSBURG — Milton J. Shapp, Democratic candidate for governor of Pennsylvania in 1968, was a visitor in Stroudsburg Thursday.

"During my morning visit I conferred with Mrs. Marsha Clapp DeRocco and others about the possibility of bringing the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra to the Poconos and presenting a series of concerts each summer," Shapp said.

The former candidate for governor also revealed that he spent Thursday afternoon in the Allentown-Bethlehem area meeting with a group concerning the same undertaking. Shapp said that in no way would the presence of the Mid-Atlantic Music Center in Mountainhome detract from appearances of the Philadelphia Orchestra in this area.

"In fact, it will actually increase interest in both programs. As an example, there are at least six large music camps and symphony centers within 15 miles of Lenox, Mass.," Shapp said.

Township aides earn $23,000

STROUDSBURG — The more money you spend, the more you make is a reverse of the adage, but for Monroe County's township secretaries, it is especially true.

The secretaries of Monroe County's 16 townships are paid a percentage of the township expenditures.

State law provides that township secretaries can be paid up to three per cent of the expenditures. The expenditures, however, cannot include payment on loans.

Most of the secretaries in Monroe County are paid three per cent. The percentage is set by the individual Township Board of Supervisors.

In 1966, the latest state audit figures available, the secretaries in the 16 townships earned a total $23,405. These salaries were based on three per cent of a total $789,175 townships expenditures for that year.

The secretaries also have the option to getting paid either monthly or annually.

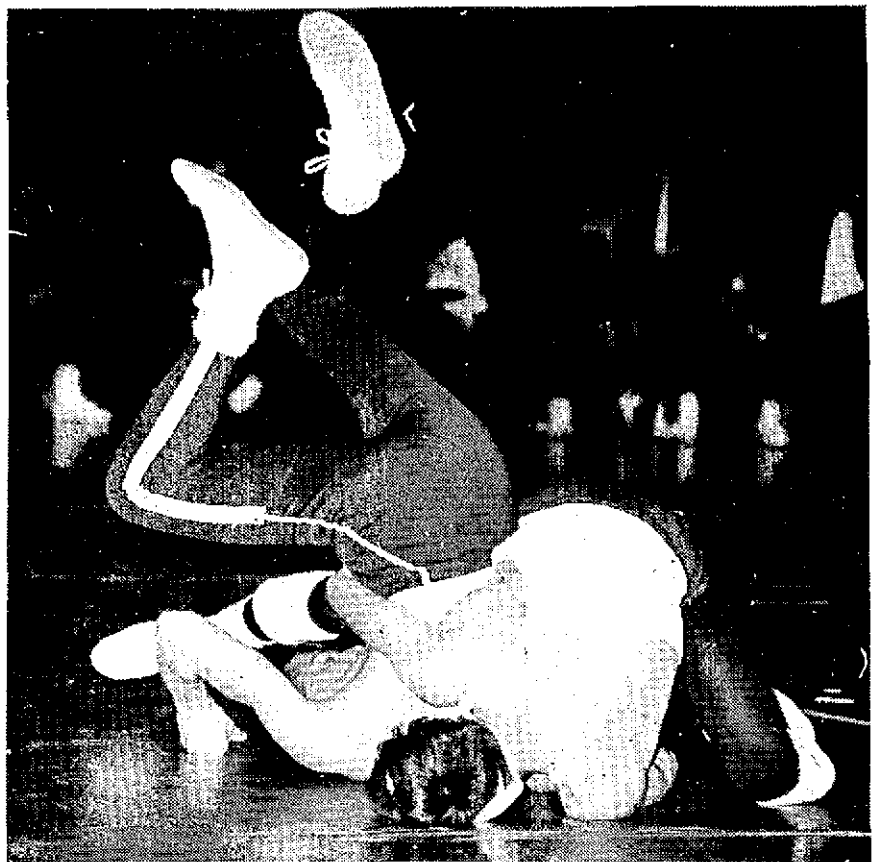

Barrelet Township Secretary Rodger Lindsey receives the highest salary based on the percentages. Lindsey's salary, in 1966, was $3,092. By the same token, however, Barrelet is the largest township with the most expenditures.

The second highest paid secretary is Harold E. Albert from Stroud with $2,240 and third, Carl C. Hamblin from Paradise with $1,846.

The lowest amount was collected by Stanley Newman in Price Twp., $315.

Lombardi quits as coach; Bengtson named successor

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Iron-willed Vince Lombardi stepped down Thursday night as coach of the world-champion Green Bay Packers and named long-time assistant Phil Bengtson to succeed him.

Lombardi said he would remain in Green Bay as the National Football League club's general manager.

The decision came only a month after Lombardi guided the Packers to a third straight NFL title and a second straight Super Bowl triumph.

The coach told a gathering of Packers directors and newsmen that the responsibilities of both coaching and running the team as general manager had become too much for one man.

The growth of professional football, the problems created by the merger of the National and American Football Leagues and the increasing burden of player relations demanded a full-time general manager, Lombardi said.

"I must relinquish one of the jobs," Lombardi said.

He then announced he was

Vince Lombardi

Phil Bengtson

turning over head coaching duties to Bengtson, whom he described as a "loyal and dedicated assistant."

"Under his leadership and direction, Green Bay football will continue to be excellent. Green Bay football will continue to grow," Lombardi said.

Bengtson, 56, has been Lombardi's defensive coach since Lombardi took over the ailing Green Bay franchise and turned it into a winner in 1959.

The former Minnesota athlete has long held the reputation of being one of football's foremost defensive coaches.

As Packers coach, the 54-year-old Lombardi won as no other coach in professional football ever had won.

"Winning isn't everything," Lombardi once said. "It's the only thing." With the Packers under Lombardi, it almost was.

In nine seasons as Packers coach, Lombardi's teams won 89 regular season games, lost only 29, and tied four. The Packers captured five NFL titles, six Western Conference titles, and two World titles in two games with the American Football League champions.

Hayes nets 39; Houston pressed

NEW YORK (AP) — Elvin Hayes scored 39 points in leading the unbeaten top-ranked Houston Cougars past troublesome Marshall 102-93 Thursday night for their 20th victory.

The Cougars, a bit sluggish in their first Madison Square Garden appearance in two years, had leads that reached 40-27 in the first half and 65-49 in the second, but heavy underdog Marshall always came back until All-American Hayes climaxed his performance with Houston's last seven points.

After the Cougars had taken their 16-point spread as Hayes fed a 9-2 spurt, reserve Rickey Hall hit three baskets and helped bring the Thundering Herd to within 79-74.

The lead shrank another point, to 85-81, on George Stone's basket with 5:35 left before Hayes sandwiched two baskets around a pair of free throws by teammate George Reynolds and Carlos Bell added two more free tosses for eight straight points, a 93-81 lead and the ball game.

Best for Abington were Vic Cikovic, 97-4x; Jay Jack, 98-4x; Dave Kenigh, 96-4x; Mike Falciglia, 97-4x; and Jim Freethy, 99-4x.

Name golfers trailing in Hope Classic

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — The more famous golfers remained among the also-rans but still in close contention Thursday as Kermit Zarley, winner of the recent Kaiser International, and Australian Bruce Devlin took over the lead after two rounds in the $122,000 Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic.

The 30-year-old Devlin fired a five-under-par 67 over the tough Eldorado Country Club course and Zarley, 26, from Seattle, Wash., had a 68 as they tied at 135.

Play was under ideal conditions over four courses—Eldorado, La Quinta, Bermuda Dunes and Indian Wells—each with par 36-36-72.

The two big names of the event, Arnold Palmer and Billy Casper finished the 36 holes deadlocked at 142—Palmer with a 70 and Casper a 72, both at Eldorado.

Sentimental favorite Tom Nieporte of Locust Valley, N.Y., last year's winner, rallied from a first round 76 to a 72, also at Eldorado, for 148.

The first-round leaders, Bob Rosburg and Bill Collins, fell back. Rosburg had a 74 for 141 and Collins a 75 for 142.

S-burg shooters post 499-33x

Top five shooters for the Mounties (4-5) were Jay Albertson, 100-7x; Gary Meekes, 99-6x; Barbara Pintarich, 99-5x; Jim Beltenzis, 100-8x and Brett Druckenmiller, 100-7x.

Best for Abington were Vic Cikovic, 97-4x; Jay Jack, 98-4x; Dave Kenigh, 96-4x; Mike Falciglia, 97-4x; and Jim Freethy, 99-4x.

Routs Whitehall to tie Kids, Hornets

By TID WISMER
Record Sports Editor

STROUDSBURG—Stroudsburg High School gained a share of the Lehigh Valley Wrestling League's seasonal championship for the second straight year Thursday night. By virtue of its easy 43-10 rout of Whitehall, the Mounties moved into a first place tie with Emmaus and Northampton, a 29-11 winner over Catasauqua. All three teams finished with 5-1 marks.

It was by far the most impressive showing by the Mounties on their home mats and head coach Chet Dalgewicz best summed it up by saying, "The boys are just getting confidence in their moves."

Stroudsburg may be the hardest hit team by injuries in the league and if any more are added to the list the Mounties may have the largest cheering section of crippled wrestlers at the Lehigh Valley League tournament Feb. 17 at Catasauqua.

The latest additions to the list are Ernie Neyhart and Dale Heller, both with twisted knees. They thus join Nick Scerbo and Terry Bush on the sidelines.

Dalgewicz said the only thing they talked about in the dressing room before the match was a share of the league title. And it was evident from the start of each of the 12 bouts that the Mounties were not to be denied.

Of the 10 S-burg victories, seven were by falls and two of the decisions were by the shutout route.

Dan Moyer remained the only unbeaten Mountie (10-0) as he put away Randy Galgon in the second period (3:53), after nearly scoring a fall in the closing seconds of the first period.

Four other Mounties have lost only once. They are Mike Stofinski, Bob Stettler, Ed Strunk and Dale Keenhold.

First period fall

Stofinski (10-1) once again got the Mounties (8-3) on the right foot by putting away George Anthony at 1:41 of the first period with a cradle.

Stettler was almost pinned by Ernie Galgon in the second period but came on strong in the third with a near-fall enroute to a 9-2 decision and gave S-burg a 9-0 lead.

Jack Serfass took Doug Wiltrout down for a 2-0 lead at 1:15 but after that it was all the Zephyr veteran. Wiltrout had a near-fall in the second and a predicament in the third before gaining a pin with 59 seconds left in the bout.

Stroudsburg then swept through the next six bouts without any trouble.

Moyer started the run by picking up five points (take-down and a near-fall) in the first period against Randy Galgon. After a quick reversal to start the second, Moyer pinned Galgon at the 3:52 mark.

Dan Keuler then came through with his second straight impressive showing as he blanked John Valtzer, 7-0. Keuler scored a takedown in the first, rode Valtzer the entire second and then reversed his foe in the third.

Paul Lesoine then upped the S-burg lead to 22-5 as he stopped Dan Haines in the third period with a cradle. Lesoine had a slim 2-1 lead at the time as the result of a second period reversal.

Gary VanBuskirk scored two takedowns and a reversal enroute to a 7-1 win over Ron Bower at 1:41 and gave the Mounties a 25-5 lead.

Strunk, who has been involved in three draws, came out with fire in his eye and scored five quick points on Randy Derhammer with a takedown and near-fall. After a reversal in the second, Strunk put Derhammer away at the 3:17 mark.

At 157 Charlie Zellers was taken down by Todd Kanishock but gained a quick reversal. Zellers then took the top position to start the second and put Kanishock away 77 seconds later.

Bob Lee, making his first varsity start as a sub for Neyhart, was no match for Gerry Bundra, one of the top 167-pounders in the district. Bundra led 5-0 after one period and pinned Lee with 3:19 gone.

In the 183-pound test, Bill Zellers and John Koch were scoreless after two periods although the former had two minutes riding time. Zellers then reversed Koch and picked up two more points on riding time.

Then in the heavyweight bout, Keenhold, who had his unbeaten streak stopped last Saturday, fell behind to Roger Darr in the first period.

But Keenhold seemed to get "upset" early in the second and scored a reversal and predicament before pinning Derr at 3:30 with a half-nelson and body press.

The Stroudsburg junior varsity also had a breeze as they posted a 42-14 victory. Jim Straub, Ed Hudak and Gary Raymond were S-burg pinners.

96 — Stofinski, S, pinned Anthony in 1:43 (6-0).

100 — Stettler, S, decisioned E. Galgon, 9-2 (9-0).

111 — Wiltrout, W, pinned Serfass in 5:01 (8-0).

122 — Moyer, S, pinned R. Galgon in 3:52 (14-0).

130 — Keuler, S, decisioned Valtzer, 7-0 (17-0).

136 — Lesoine, S, pinned Haines in 5:09 (22-0).

141 — VanBuskirk, S, decisioned Bower, 9-1 (25-0).

148 — Strunk, S, pinned Derhammer in 3:55 (30-0).

157 — C. Zellers, S, pinned Kanishock in 7:17 (35-0).

168 — Bundra, W, pinned Lee in 2:19 (37-0).

183 — R. Zellers, S, decisioned Koch, 4-0 (38-0).

197 — Keenhold, S, pinned Derr in 3:30 (43-10).

Junior Varsity

98 — Duffy, S, decisioned Kerbacher, 5-0 (3-0).

109 — Nevil, S, won by forfeit (9-0).

114 — Phillips, S, won by forfeit (16-0).

120 — Straub, S, pinned Zwicki in 2:17 (20-0).

130 — Leon, S, won by forfeit (26-0).

136 — Hudak, S, pinned Schmidt in 2:05 (31-0).

141 — Raynack, S, decisioned Seider, 7-0 (38-0).

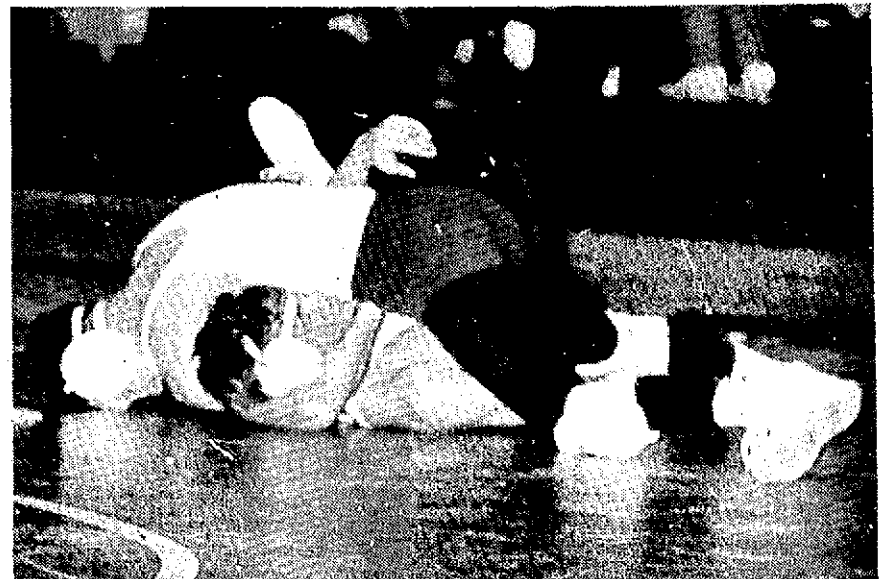

147 — Hoffman, S, and Rosenberger drew, 2-2 (38-2).

154 — Kipels, W, decisioned Owens, 15-0 (53-5).

167 — Brothrock, W, won by forfeit (59-1).

182 — Miller, W, decisioned Coughlin, 4-1 (59-14).

191 — Remond, S, pinned Tepes in 5:15 (63-14).

Paul Lesoine, Stroudsburg's 135-pounder, was unable to pin Whitehall's John Valtzer with this hold in the third period Thursday night. But, seconds later, Lesoine used a cradle to end the match and score one of the seven Mountie falls.

Feud left unsettled despite FAB's report

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal arbitration board submitted its recommendations Thursday for the control of amateur athletics but it may not have ended the bitter organizational feud which many sports fans believe is endangering U.S. chances in this year's Olympic Games.

The board, headed by labor mediator Theodore Kheel of New York, said the Amateur Athletic Union must sanction all international and open domestic track meets. The National Collegiate Athletic Association could hold domestic meets which are closed to all but full-time students.

The U.S. Track and Field Federation, an arm of the NCAA, could sponsor open competition, under the board's ruling, but would need the sanction of the AAU.

That sanction, however, would be automatic if the USFFF satisfied all the AAU's international requirements.

The report calls for a coordinating committee consisting of equal number of members from the AAU-National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics and the NCAA-USFFF with an impartial chairman to be chosen by the groups involved or the vice president of the United States.

All disputes over the interpretation, application and alleged violations of the rules contained in the report or any other disputes would be decided by the committee with the chairman casting a deciding vote in case of ties.

The rules set down by the board would last five years.

Kheel, whose board was created in December 1965 by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, said the report is a binding arbitration but if any parties subject to its rules "set out to frustrate our decision, they would probably succeed. But if they do, they will do a great disservice to all the amateur athletes involved."

The report asks that the presidents of each of the organizations involved notify the Senate Commerce Committee by Feb. 10 whether they will abide by the rules. A more formal notification could come at a later date when the executive councils of the organizations would take up the matter.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., chairman of the commerce committee which set up the arbitration, said if all the organizations do not go along with the board's recommendations, his panel would have to take up legislation currently pending in the Senate to create a governing body for amateur athletics.

The quarrel between the AAU and the NCAA has been going on for more than 50 years but has become increasingly bitter during the past few years.

The USFFF is sponsoring a track meet in New York Feb. 9 and has refused to seek AAU sanction. The AAU, on the other hand, says the event needs its sanction because three of the participants are no longer eligible for intercollegiate competition even though still in school.

The AAU has said it would recommend that all participants in the event be declared ineligible for the Olympic Games if the event goes on without AAU sanction.

Under the board's ruling—even though they do not apply to the New York event—the NCAA would not need an AAU sanction.

JIM MURRAY

Charms the course

Kids are always coming to me for advice on how to get in the sportswriting dodge. I always tell them, the first thing you have to do is, don't ROOT. Check those pompoms at the pressroom door. Never, never find yourself saying, "Go get 'em, Willie!" or "Take 'em in, John!"

The preferred attitude is cynical detachment. Empathize with either or any of the contestants and you'll be an emotional wreck before the season is over. So will your writing.

I have occasionally violated this well-thought-out principle of mine. I rooted for Sandy Koufax once in a seventh game of a World Series where he had a shutout going. Just as I would have rooted for a guy to finish a roundbracket. I rooted for Joe Louis every time out. But that was pretty easy on you.

Basically, I'm an "aw, strike the bum out!" type. "Go in the trap!" I've been known to root on tee shots. "The field goal is wide to the left!" often brings a furtive little smile to my lips. I never say a noverbal for Notre Dame. The Yankees are on their own except when Mickey Mantle comes to bat.

My reasons for violating my own law in the case of the golfer, Davey Marr, are the least bit complicated. So, I will begin at the end.

First of all, I think of Davey as "the pro from Tools Shop's." Reared in Texas, he is as Broadway as Times Square, as Madison Avenue, as Batavia, Barton, Durstine & Osborne. He's Jimmy Walker in cleats Beau Marr. The clothes are so relentlessly pressed and the shoes so relentlessly shined, he looks as if he has a valet instead of a caddy. By the fourth hole, an Arnold Palmer looks as if he just crossed the river in his clothes. Davey Marr looks as if he just left the tailor shop.

No laundry for Arnold. The dialogue is as crisp as the wardrobe. He's as comfortable with a maitre d' as he is with a caddy. When he won the PGA, three months after Gary Player had won the National Open and turned the money back, Davey announced he was going to keep the money and give Gary Player back.

When Arnold Palmer opened his chain of laundries, Davey found that "the only pro I'll send my laundry to is Chag, Chag Po." He came upon the pencil-thin Al Geiberger standing by a sandtrap one day and said in some surprise, "Oh, hello, Allen, I thought you were a rater!"

He played with the venerable Scott, Tommy Armour, a relic of hickory shaft days, once, and came in shaking his head: "I got waggled to death," he explained. He played with the Spaniard, Ramon Sota, once, and, after watching Ramon's elaborate positioning himself at the ball, declared "Ramon screws himself into the ground as if he were going to fight a bull, not hit a ball."

He came up to the 18th at the Masters another year needing a birdie for second, and was playing with Arnold Palmer who was several shots in the lead, and Arnold inquired anxiously if there was anything he could do to help. "Yeh," shot back Marr. "You can take a 12." He thinks of the quips immediately that you normally don't think of until after everyone is home safely in bed.

He plays golf the way he lives. The swing is as silken as the shirts. He could play in a tuxedo. He charms the course, doesn't try to drag it off by the hair. He doesn't go into the competitive funk of a Ben Hogan. If a dog crosses his line of flight, he can see it all right. And give you its pedigree. He can tell you who the president of France is. Most pros only know the pro at St. Cloud. He reads something more than the local rules.

Even so, I'll be glad when he's back East. You see, he's had seven out of eight rounds under 70 in California, has won $19,366 in two weeks, and thus has been in the hunt in each of his last two tournaments. In fact, he's led those tournaments five out of eight rounds.

You can see what an impossible strain that has put on me. Your see, I don't LIKE standing there silently screaming, "Don't go out of bounds!" or "Please go in the hole!" I like it better when somebody comes up to me, white-faced, and says, "Old one-pull's just knocked two of them in the ocean!" And I can go behind a tree and laugh until I have to hold my sides.

Saints took 15 seconds

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — With their newly acquired first round selection, the New Orleans Saints took only 15 seconds Tuesday to select All-America defensive tackle Kevin Hardy of Notre Dame in the college football player draft.

Instead of picking 59th the Saints, in a down-to-the-wire trade late Monday, traded quarterback Gary Cuzzo to the Minnesota Vikings for the seventh selection in the first round. "I didn't think Kevin would last that long," said club owner John W. Mecom Jr. at the Saints' busy offices where long distance telephone lines connected team officials with the draft headquarters in New York.

Opening lead — ten of hearts.
Most people who don't play bridge, or play so rarely they can't really be called bridge players, have the idea that memory plays an important role in the game.

The fact is that anyone with average card sense is rarely handicapped by shortcomings of memory. The player who takes the trouble to plan his play, whether as declarer or defender, and gives thought to each development as the play progresses, automatically and simultaneously remembers the cards played.

This process may be subconscious, but it exists nonetheless. Failures attributed to a poor memory are usually caused by other factors. Thus, in the present hand, South contended he went down because he forgot the cards played on the first trick, but actually he was defeated for a different reason. East won the heart lead with the king after dummy had covered the ten with the jack. He returned the king of diamonds, which declarer ducked, and shifted to a trump. Declarer drew another round of trump, cashed the A-K of clubs and led another club. He hoped East would be forced to win the trick and would thus be endplayed. But West won the third club, returned a diamond, and South went down one.

South missed an easy way to make the hand. He should have won the trump return in dummy and led the queen of hearts. With the nine now the only discards a loser when East follows low, thus establishing dummy's six as a trick. He later discards his last loser on the six, bringing him to ten tricks. Declarer's error was not so much in forgetting the hearts played on the opening trick (K-J-10-8), as it was in failing to notice at that point that a heart trick can easily be developed from the Q-7-3 when the only remaining high hearts are the A-9.

Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Judy Garland said she'd love to star in the Broadway troupe of "Mame!" after Angela Lansbury leaves — if she can have matinees off! ... Sargent Shriver met LBJ at the White House where the President purportedly told Sarge he'll give him "unqualified support" for any political post he seeks, even if he runs against old LBJ-pal Everett McKinley Dickson of the Senate and jukeboxes.

New Russian film in Moscow, "Your Contemporary," is a sellout, championing the "individual" against the Party machine with the simple message, "Tell the people the truth"; oh sure, and why not tell the people the truth about the four young Moscow intellectuals who've been heaved into jail for precisely that.

His Miami Beach Hilton Plaza launched successfully, Harry Singer now says he'll build another multi-million resort in Arabia... Singer's opening Hilton Plaza act, Harry Belafonte, already is booked back to open next season (at $100,000).

Tommy Dilbeck who made grisly headlines when he killed his wife at a divorce trial, wounding witnesses, is the songwriter of "I'll Hold You In My Heart" (until I can hold you in my arms), recorded by Eddie Fisher and Eddy Arnold; he also wrote "My Daddy Is Only a Picture"; sad, tortured man.

Groucho Marx is around town asking what Pinter's "Birthday Party" is all about; it's about closed, Groucho, so stop puzzling — as we all did. The "PM" in Piper's PM, now Eastside (53rd St.) pub means "previously married," the owners down to the hatchback all marital dropouts... Dan Dailey's reported "serious" about Carol Warner, acting with Dan in Chicago's "The Odd Couple"; Carol's also in "Funny Girl," all finished filming but a season away from screens.

20th Fox shot a record total of black & white still photos for Julie Andrews' "Star!" movie; 32,197; not counting color stills, another 6,180... So be Fox and buy film stock on the Exchange... TV commercials in movie theatres are widespread and will spread wider; but here's a new switch — a discount store chain will schedule "spot announcements" on its storewide loudspeaker system — and sell them to manufacturers who peddle products to the chain; sounds threatening.

French movie star Eddie Constantine (an American lad who made good abroad as a Gaille Bogart) and his wife patched up the split which threatened their 23-year marriage; 22-year-old daughter Tania got them smoochin' again.

John Osborne's new plays are "Time Present" and "Hotel in Amsterdam" ... Peter Shaffer changed the companion piece to his "Black Comedy" from "White Lies" to "White Liar." ... John Gavin has West Coast rights to Connie Tower's free time, Bob Ritchie of the "21" El Morocco axis when lovely Connie's East.

"The Electric Bath" is a new Columbia album by the Don Ellis Orchestra, a big one (21 men) and it's a fascinating, brilliant display of modern far-out music which still manages to remain excitingly melodic... It's also ideal for rock-minded rollers who might wish to step up from the eruptive rhythms with little feeling for melody to more musically sounds; it utilizes all sorts of harmonies.
